Dollar Tree Appoints Daniel Delrosario as Senior Vice President of Investor Relations and Treasurer

In this role, Mr. Delrosario will serve as a senior leader in the company's finance organization, overseeing investor relations and treasury, including capital markets strategy, liquidity management, and engagement with the investment community. He will report to Stewart Glendinning, Chief Financial Officer of Dollar Tree.

"Following our Investor Day this past fall, we are focused on maintaining momentum and executing against our commitments as we deliver on our next phase of value creation," said Stewart Glendinning, Chief Financial Officer, Dollar Tree. "Daniel brings a strong combination of investor perspective, corporate finance expertise and leadership experience that will be instrumental in supporting our financial strategy and ongoing engagement with the investment community."

Most recently, Mr. Delrosario served as Vice President of Investor Relations and Treasury at Burlington Stores, Inc., where he partnered with senior leadership on investor communications, financial planning, and capital structure strategy. Prior to this, he held senior investment roles at Polar Asset Management Partners, contributed to the launch and growth of Harvard Management Company's internal global public equity platform, and began his career at Wellington Management. He holds a bachelor's degree in corporate finance and accounting from Bentley University and is a CFA Charterholder.
